Saab receives order for defence equipment

Saab has today received an order from a Government of a Western country for a number of defence systems and equipment. The order value is approximately SEK 4.3 billion with deliveries planned 2025-2027.

The order includes systems and equipment from Saab's business areas Dynamics and Surveillance.

"We are proud to be able to contribute to our customers' safety and we continue to see a great interest in our world leading products and solutions," says Saab's President and CEO Micael Johansson.

Due to the nature of the industry, circumstances concerning the customer and national security interests, no further information regarding this order or the customer will be provided.
