Saab's combat boats are advanced platforms that can be used for many different types of missions. They are manufactured by Saab's shipyard in Docksta. Deliveries will be made continuously over the coming years.

"This order represents a significant addition to Sweden's naval capabilities. We are proud that Saab's combat boats continue to contribute to Sweden's defence," says Mats Wicksell, head of Saab's business area Kockums.

The Docksta shipyard has been manufacturing combat boats for the Swedish Armed Forces since the late 1980s. Since then, hundreds of combat boats from Docksta have been produced for countries around the world. The most recent order from Sweden was placed in June 2024, when ten combat boats were ordered.
