Saab receives order for Giraffe 4A radar systems from a country in Latin America

Saab has received an order for Giraffe 4A radar systems with associated services from a country in Latin America. The order value is approximately SEK 550 million.

The mobile, self-contained, digital sensor solution Giraffe 4A increases the customer's land-based air surveillance capabilities, and enables software-based updates.

"We are proud to announce the first contract of the land-based Giraffe 4A to Latin America. This milestone marks a significant step in expanding our presence in the region with advanced medium range radar. This capability will provide our customer with state-of-the-art air surveillance capability", says Carl-Johan Bergholm, head of Saab's business area Surveillance.

Giraffe 4A is a multi-functional radar system that offers users a range of advanced capabilities. With the ability to identify and track a high number of objects simultaneously, it is well-suited for both air and sea surveillance.

Saab is a leading defence and security company with an enduring mission, to help nations keep their people and society safe.
